We started off our day by having a pretty good breakfast at the hotel. The food was mostly the same from the other one we previously stayed at.

We left the hotel and walked to the train station. We got there a little early as we usually do for things and waited for it. The train came soon after that. We got on the train quickly before the doors shut because they shut rather fast. We then rode the train down to the airport and started the process of getting our boarding passes and security.

After all of that happened we walked all the way down to our gate and it was a bit of a walk. Curt then told us we could go get things for ourselves but had to be back at a certain time. Most of us got food other people drinks. Then everybody met back to our gate. We were waiting for our plane to be ready but then it got delayed, so we were waiting a while longer.

Once the plane was finally ready, we took a little bus to our plane, which was odd, because none of us have ever done that before and it was a smaller plane. We all walked up the stairs of the plane and got seated then soon after that, the plane took off. It was a really smooth flight and for most of flight Caroline, Macy, Kendall and I played Uno for basically the whole time while others slept, or just chilled.

The plane ride was about an hour or so and by fast. we landed in Munich Germany and waited for a luggage for a long time. After everyone got their luggage, we walked out to the big bus that was taken us all the way to our hotel, and everyone got situated on there.

We weren't on the bus that long until we got to McDonald's and everyone was excited to go have American food. After that we had about 2 hours left until we were at the hotel. We loved seeing the pretty mountains and castles on the way there.

We finally got to the hotel and we got to have pizza for dinner it was really good! When we finished our dinners we all got to hang out for 3 hours before we left for the new year celebration.

It was long walk to the river but it was definitely worth it because we all had a lot of fun spending time together and making new memories and we all thought that the lights on the houses and the fireworks were great and fun to watch. The walk back to the hotel was crazy at first because of how busy it was but after a while it went back to normal. Once we got back to the hotel we went to bed. We all had a amazing night!
